The World War I Memorial

The blue Memorial behind the container

Part of the inscribed marble honour roll

ON ANZAC DAY WE WILL REMEMBER THEM

They left the Large to see the world and to fight a bloody war in support of their country and our allies. Sadly many did not return.

On Anzac Day, we will remember the forgotten World War 1 soldiers from the Large Erecting Shop. Workers from the Large have cleaned the surrounds of the little known War Memorial attached to the rear wall of the Heritage Listed Large Erecting Shop. This memorial was included in the National Heritage Listing Nomination and is hidden behind a container. However it still remains where these workers would want it to be, mounted on their beloved workshop.

Listed below are the names of all those on the memorial.
